DANIEL BUDD SKYRING	Portion	Section	Grave Number
	13	67	12

The Skyring family arrived in 1833 in Sydney. Daniel's family were well known builders and surveyors in England and Daniel's occupation was bricklayer. Following the opening of Moreton Bay to free settlers, Daniel purchased land in North Brisbane and chartered a vessel to bring his family, cattle and the merchandise to open a store as well as the family belongings. He planted an orchard on several acres of land he owned near where All Hallows Convent is today and started a quarry and brickyard there while his wife and daughters ran a shop in Queen Street. He died at Cleveland on 21 February 1882, 15 years after his retirement. Skyring Terrace at Teneriffe is named after him.

Born in 1836, a native of Enniskillen in the Irish county of Fermanagh, Nathaniel Corrigan arrived in Brisbane in the early 1860s from Victoria with his wife Ellen (née Dougherty) who he had married in Melbourne in 1864. He commenced business in Ann Street Fortitude Valley as a grocer and produce merchant and purchased the Empire Hotel, forerunner to the present Empire Hotel on the corner of Ann and Brunswick Streets in 1871. In 1888/9 he had a block of buildings later referred to as Corrigan's Buildings which included the present hotel erected on the same site. He died on 29 July 1899.

CATHERINE MARY BRAGG	Portion	Section	Grave Number
	7	23	1

Catherine or Kate Bragg (née Fitzgibbon) immigrated to Brisbane with her parents from County Cork in 1853. She married a young baker named Joseph Bragg whose father, Charles Bragg had purchased a property which included a baker's oven in a building at the rear of the site in Ann Street Fortitude Valley. Joseph and Kate ran the bakery at the site which Kate, who became a Master Baker, carried on after Joseph's death in 1883. Kate had a new building constructed on the Ann Street site which is still there today beside Bakers Lane. Kate died on 29 October 1916 at the age of 72 years.

JAMES HENDLEY FITZGIBBON	Portion	Section	Grave Number
	7	16	14

James Fitzgibbon was one of the founders of the Pharmaceutical Society in Queensland. He arrived in Brisbane in 1863 after qualifying as an apothecary in his native Cork. He became a chemist and druggist in Ipswich before being appointed dispenser at the new Brisbane Hospital. In 1874 he purchased the business formerly carried on by Moses Ward at the Apothecaries Hall in Ann Street Fortitude Valley and in 1882 replaced Ward's Apothecaries Hall with the one that stands today on the same site. James died on 6 February 1916 at the age of 87.

ROBERT COSTER VERNEY	Portion	Section	Grave Number
	18	36	30

Robert Verney and his family migrated from Aylesbury in Buckinghamshire in 1874. He began a business in Victoria (now Doggett) Street, Fortitude Valley as a general tinsmith. By 1896, the firm of R.C. Verney & Sons was supplying tin cans for such iconic firms as Colonial Sugar Co for their Golden Syrup. They also made roof ventilators, popular on buildings before the days of airconditioning. The firm branched out into making jams and preserves, tomato sauce, pickles and relishes and had a fruit canning section as well. The firm went into liquidation in 1904. Robert was 78 when he died on 29 October 1909.

SAMUEL ELMS	Portion	Section	Grave Number
	18	43	17/18

Samuel Elms began working in the coal mines in Bristol, England at the age of 8. Health issues influenced his decision to leave England and he arrived in Brisbane in 1878 at the age of 49. He tried his hand at hotel keeping in Ipswich before entering into a jam and fruit preserving business with two of his sons in Costin Street, Fortitude Valley. He died on 22 June 1918 at his Valley home.

JAMES McWHIRTER JNR	Portion	Section	Grave Number
	18	98	3/7

James McWhirter Jnr was born in Stirling, Scotland in 1874. He became a partner with his father in the cash drapery store of McWhirter & Son which opened for business in Brunswick Street, Fortitude Valley on 22 September 1898. He played a big part in the development of the firm before his death in Sydney on 17 September 1919 after contracting influenza which developed into double pneumonia while on a business trip to Melbourne.

WILLIAM JAMES OVERELL	Portion	Section	Grave Number
	11	37	8

William Overell received his early training in the softgoods trade in Hobart before relocating to Brisbane in 1877. He established the firm of Overell & White in 1883 in premises at the corner of Ann and Warner Streets, Fortitude Valley. The firm became known as W J Overell & Sons in 1889. Three years after moving into a handsome new building in Brunswick Street in 1900, a catastrophic fire totally destroyed the entire building and stock. Ten months later a new building opened on the same site. After William's death on 5 March 1917, his sons carried on the business. In 1956 the store was bought by Waltons and closed in 1987.

WILLIAM ALBERT WHINCUP	Portion	Section	Grave Number
	12	31	7/8

William Whincup started his business career in the Fortitude Valley as a fruiterer and confectioner after his arrival in Brisbane in 1885. Ten years later he entered the second-hand clothing business and, in partnership with George Nelson, his furniture warehouse began trading in 1903. It later became a public company, Whincup & Co. The building was sold to Overell's in 1928. William died on 8 August 1938 at his home at Cleveland following a long illness.

MOSES WARD	Portion	Section	Grave Number
	12	27	21

Shortly after Moses Ward and his family arrived in Brisbane from Barnstaple, Devonshire in 1862, he purchased the business of Mr T.C. Drew, a chemist and druggist in Ann Street, Fortitude Valley. In 1864 he bought 14.5 perches of land from Charles Bragg next door to Bragg's Bakery and built an Apothecaries Hall on that site. In 1874 he sold the Hall and opened for business in Queen Street
